THINGS THAT GROW:

The moon was but a chin of gold
A Night or two ago —
And now she turns her perfect face
Upon the world below —

Her Forehead is of amplest Blonde—
Her cheek like berry lewng—
Her eye unto the sunne dew
The lites I have known.

Her lips of amber never part —
For what must be a smile
Upon her friend she could confer
Were such her silver will —

And what a privilege to be but the bendest star—
For certainty she take her way
Beside your palace door—

Her bonnet is the firmament—
The universe — her shoe —
The stars — the twinklers at her
Her dimities — of blue —

THE STORM

emily dickenson

There came a wind like a bugle;
It quivered through the grass,
And a green chill upon the heat
So ominous did pass

We barred the windows and the doors
As from an emerald ghost;
The doom's electric moccasin
That very instant passed.

On a strange mob of panting trees,
And fences fled away,
And rivers were the houses nah
The living looked that day.
The bell within the steeple wild
The fly tiding's whirled.

How much can come
How much can go,
And yet abide the world!
